José Andrés is an international innovator chef, a pioneer of Spanish “tapas” in the United States. He is also known for his revolutionary avant-garde cuisine. José Ramón Andrés Puerta was born in Asturias in 1969. He enrolled in a culinary school in Barcelona at the age of 15. There, he met Ferran Adrià and worked at El Bulli restaurant. At the age of 21, he decided to move to the United States. He started to work in Manhattan at a popular Spanish restaurant. In 1993, he changed to the restaurant Jaleo, in Washington and he helped the owners to open more restaurants. In 2003, Andrés started Minibar (a new concept of a small and exclusive restaurant). As his restaurants in America enjoyed success, Andrés became more famous in Spain, starring in his cooking show, “Vamos a Cocinar” (2005). He also published his first book, “Tapas”. In 2006, he negotiated with Robert Wilder to form Think Food Group, making Andrés a co-owner in his restaurants.

In response to the 2010 Haiti earthquake, Andrés formed World Central Kitchen, a non-profit organisation which provides aid and meals to families and individuals touched by disasters. It helped in the United States and Spain during the COVID-19 pandemic.

In 2012, Andrés was named dean of Spanish Studies at The International Culinary Centre, where he developed a curriculum in traditional and modern Spanish cuisine. In 2015, he was awarded a National Humanities Medal for his work with World Central Kitchen.

Today, José Andrés distributes food and provides medical assistance to families in need through its foundation.
